A CHEYENNE EXCURSION.

New York, June 30.—[Special.]—There was a crowd of about 5,000 people in Madison Square Garden tonight to witness the prize fight between John L. Sullivan and Charley Mitchell. There were hundreds of people from Boston and Philadelphia, and also from Baltimore and Chicago and other cities. In the early part of the evening it was rumored that both heavy men's backers would not be on hand, having an interest in the prominent events of the affair. The first part of the night's programme consisted of sparring exhibitions between some of the fistic and athletic celebrities.

"Give all a show!"

A few minutes before 10 John L. Sullivan stood across the ring. He climbed the ropes with unusually slow and studied motion. He was, indeed, the cynosure of all eyes. Then a hundred voices re-echoed in shrill, piercing tones, "Mitchell's not at a show!" Sullivan's face was a study. It was a picture of disappointment, chagrin and anger. Mitchell's backers had failed to put in an appearance. Then the audience began to hoot and jeer. Sullivan's face turned from red to pale, and then to a dark, angry purple. He was evidently much chagrined at the situation. Then he began to walk around the ring, and, shaking his fist at the audience, he shouted, "Give me a show!" Then he walked to the corner of the ring and sat down. The audience continued to hoot and jeer. Sullivan's face

A Vigorous Debate in the House on the Pottawatomie Bill.

Queer and Inexcusable Blunder Regarding the "Saddlebag" Land-Grant Measure.

Obstacle in the Way of Adjournment This Week—The Indian Case.

THE POTTAWATOMIE BILL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.—(Special.)—The House has entered upon the discussion of the Pottawatomie bill, to which, curiously enough, the Chairman of the Appropriations Committee happens in the opposition of the minority report. The subject is not entirely that which may most interest the House, and the question rests to have drawn much research. Mr. Hull, of Michigan, the author of the bill, explained that the bill directed the fulfillment of the permanent policy which the Government have accepted of only negotiating a treaty without payment of money to buy the land from actually existing Indians. Mr. Sherman, [illegible] the Democratic side, made a very earnest speech in support of a series of resolutions to avoid unseemly complications with the progress of the country. But it was left for Representative Prouty, of Chicago, to make the speech of the day. Without any hesitant or influence of the "spoilsmen system," he announced that to carry out the Democratic policy was beneath American dignity. He insisted, as he did in the speech upon the Naval bill, that the weighty demand that senates appropriations should be made for all legitimate needs of National Defense, and he characterized the policy of the minority of the committee as not only unpatriotic but as decidedly unpolitic.

Mr. Gibson made one of the best speeches he has ever made in opposition to this policy. The House still took upon the economy cause, and still there have complained of the appropriations, except in favor of sectional reports. Members will immediately begin to be restive, and wonder why it is that the time is not ready. The Senate, however, out of a disposition to be encouraged.

ORDER OF THE HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.—The House now has Committee of the Whole on the Pottawatomie bill.

Mr. Hull favored the majority report of the committee advocating payment by the Government of $1,000,000 for ceding the reservation of the Pottawatomie Indians in Kansas to the Government, $500,000 for locating and forty to such Indians who prefer, and $1,000,000 for the purchase of their allotments.

Mr. Lee, of New York, proposed a substitute in the form of a bill providing for the payment of $1,000,000 for the Pottawatomie lands, and $1,000,000 for the purchase of their allotments.

Mr. Prouty supported the majority report. He believed the National Schools were of the greatest importance to the welfare of the country. He was in favor of the permanent policy of the Government of having a treaty with the Indians, and not forcing them from their homes, and making treaties with them. He was in favor of the bill, which carried out the policy of the Government, and which would be for the benefit of the Indians, which opened everything for the settlement of the land, and which would be for the benefit of the Government. He opposed the substitute of the gentleman who framed the bill, which would be a violation of the treaty with the Indians, and which would be for the benefit of the Government. He opposed the substitute of the gentleman who framed the bill, which would be a violation of the treaty with the Indians, and which would be for the benefit of the Government. He opposed the substitute of the gentleman who framed the bill, which would be a violation of the treaty with the Indians, and which would be for the benefit of the Government.

Mr. Sherman, of New York, opposed the majority report. He said that the Government had no right to take the land from the Indians without their consent. He was in favor of the substitute.

Mr. Gibson, of Tennessee, opposed the majority report. He said that the Government had no right to take the land from the Indians without their consent. He was in favor of the substitute.

Mr. Prouty, of Iowa, opposed the majority report. He said that the Government had no right to take the land from the Indians without their consent. He was in favor of the substitute.

H. Stevens. The accommodations consisted of sight.

A grab among people, judging from the way they are pushing always on newspapers and periodicals, do not know that there has been a change in the law regarding such publications. Formerly they were "third-class matter," though on which no one was the wiser. By the act of June 8, 1884, they were made matter "second-class matter," and the postage is one cent for four ounces or a fraction thereof upon them. The law also provides that no books and other printed matter can be sent through.

Chief Coyle Says the Assets Made Sunday Night Worse on "Infernal Mission."

Christian Visitors May Continue to Preach Outside--The Police Restrictions.

The Chicago Avenue Police Court was filled yesterday morning by people who do not usually grace places of that sort. Chief Coyle had the evangelists and their friends who held services Sunday by Officer Dan Ellis while holding religious services in Washington Park and on a report to arrest the whole. The charge against them was for obstructing a public thoroughfare. Bishop Fallows, Maj. Thomas Crosby and Mr. A. G. Sweet, of the Young Men's Christian Association, plaintiff, testified. They claimed that they had permission from the Mayor and the Chief of Police allowing them to hold open meetings.

"I don't see how the Mayor can give any permission to violate the law," said Justice Prindiville. "Section [illegible] of the ordinance says that any person who shall obstruct the sidewalk, or cause or suffer any person to do so, shall be guilty of a violation of the ordinance. The Mayor has no power to grant permission to violate the ordinance. The people who attended the meetings had a right to be there, but they had no right to obstruct the sidewalk. The ordinance is for the protection of the people, and I am sorry that the Mayor has given permission to violate it. I am willing to hear the case, but I shall fine the defendants."

Bishop Fallows said that he had been informed that the Mayor had given permission to hold the meetings, and that he had been told by the Chief of Police that he would not interfere with them. He had not intended to violate the ordinance, and was sorry that he had done so.

Maj. Thomas Crosby said that he had been informed by the Mayor that he had given permission to hold the meetings, and that the Chief of Police had been informed of the permission. He had not intended to violate the ordinance, and was sorry that he had done so.

Mr. A. G. Sweet said that he had been informed by the Mayor that he had given permission to hold the meetings, and that the Chief of Police had been informed of the permission. He had not intended to violate the ordinance, and was sorry that he had done so.

Justice Prindiville
